CORRECTED
DEFENDANT OTTO TRUCKING'S
OPPOSITION AND NOTICE TO JOIN AND ADOPT DEFENDANTS
UBER TECHNOLOGIES, INC.'S
AND OTTOMOTTO LLC'S
OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF
WAYMO LLC'S MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE OF TRIAL DATE

26 Courtroom: 8

27 Judge: Hon. William Alsup

Trial Date: October 10, 2017

1 TO THE COURT, ALL PARTIES, AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

2 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT Defendant Otto Trucking, LLC (“Otto Trucking”) hereby
 3 opposes Plaintiff Waymo LLC’s (“Waymo”) Motion for Continuance of Trial Date (the “Motion”)
 4 (Dkt. No. 1604) and joins and adopts Co-Defendants Uber Technologies, Inc.’s (“Uber”) and 5 Ottomotto LLC’s (“Ottomotto”) Opposition to Waymo’s Motion for Continuance of Trial Date (the 6 “Opposition”) (Dkt 1623).

7 Waymo knows its trade secrets case is in shambles. Because its case is in such dire straits,
 8 Waymo wants to be able to continue this case indefinitely and maintain the clouds over Otto
 9 Trucking’s future. This is not fair, and Waymo should not be allowed to continue its fruitless fishing
 10 expedition. The Federal Circuit’s order does not change the simple fact that despite exhaustive
 11 discovery of Otto Trucking, Waymo has found absolutely nothing to support a trade secrets claim.

12 Waymo’s Motion should be denied for the following four reasons:

13 1. None of the discovery concerns raised in Waymo’s Motion is relevant to Otto Trucking.

14 Whether or not the Stroz investigation occurred, Waymo has failed to set forth any 15 evidence that any of the 121 trade secrets were ever used, disclosed or acquired by Otto
 16 Trucking. Otto Trucking does not and has never used the Uber LiDAR systems that 17 allegedly misappropriated Waymo’s purported trade secrets. Indeed, Otto Trucking is 18 not involved in the development of LiDAR and has only used off-the -shelf LiDAR
 19 systems developed by a third party. As set forth in Otto Trucking’s summary judgment
 20 motion, Waymo’s legal liability theories are entirely devoid of facts. [REDACTED]

21 [REDACTED]

22 [REDACTED]

23 2. Waymo’s trade secret claims are meritless. The materials in question are not trade
 24 secrets, and Waymo cannot show misappropriation. First, the “centerpiece” of Waymo’s
 25 case is its allegation that Anthony Levandowski downloaded 14,000 files from Google’s
 26 SVN server which allegedly housed its “crown jewels” of self-driving technology.

27 8/16/17 Hr’g at 71:1-12. However, Sasha Zbrozek, the SVN server’s administrator who 28 set up the SVN server has repeatedly disputed the value of these alleged trade secrets,

1 calling them “low-value” and “second class citizens.” See Dkt 1124-5, Ex. 2 at 86886;
 2 see also Dkt 1610-4, Ex. 4 (calling the SV materials “low-value” in February 2015 when
 3 selecting a host for the SVN server). He has also repeatedly told counsel for Waymo
 4 downloading of the entire SVN repository did not “ring the alarm bells” for him and that
 5 checking out the entire repository was ordinary practice. See Dkt 1124-5, Ex.2; Ex. 4.
 6 Indeed, the day before the Waymo filed its complaint, Mr. Zbrozek told counsel for 7 Waymo,

8 “I’m a little leery because both of those numbers [14,000 files or 9.7 GBs] aren’t
 9 really meaningful in any narrative. It also has a chilling effect on being a hardware
 10 engineer - we do full checkouts and it makes me uncomfortable to think that lawyers
 11 are trying to ascribe suspicion to it.” Dkt 1524-5, Ex. 4 at 86936 (emphasis added).

12 Second, Waymo cannot show misappropriation. As set forth in Uber’s opposition, the 13 Stroz report concluded that there was no evidence that Mr. Levandowski retained
 14 information from Google. See Dkt. 1623, at 1; 1604-1 (Stroz Report) at 12.

- 15 3. Waymo should not be able to seek a continuance to cover up its misconduct. Waymo
 16 attempted to shield the identify of Mr. Zbrozek and his damaging opinion from discovery
 17 by submitting declarations from individuals without personal knowledge of the SVN
 18 server in support of its preliminary injunction instead of from Mr. Zbrozek, failing to 19 disclose him on its three rounds of initial disclosures, and selectively waiving privilege
 20 over its investigation such that only the information helpful to Waymo was produced
 21 until the end of discovery. Mr. Zbrozek’s communications to counsel during the 22 investigation were not produced until 8:54 p.m. on the last day of discovery, after Mr.
 23 Zbrozek’s deposition, and after Otto Trucking had to move to compel Waymo’s
 24 production of these materials. Even after the close of discovery, Otto Trucking had to 25 repeatedly seek Judge Corley’s assistance in compelling Waymo’s compliance with the 26 Court’s order to produce the documents and communications relating to its investigation.
 27 After the late production of these materials, Otto Trucking deposed Mr. Zbrozek again,
 28 who confirmed what was reflected in the documents—that Waymo’s attorneys did not

1 care about Mr. Zbrozek's opinions. See Dkt 1524-5, Ex. 25.

2       4. Otto Trucking was not a party to the Stroz evaluation so the production of the Stroz
 3 materials have no effect on Otto Trucking. Waymo successfully argued that Otto
 4 Trucking was not a party to the Stroz evaluation and did not have standing to seek
 5 protection. Dkt. No. 760 at 6-7; 745. As a result, Waymo is now judicially estopped
 6 from arguing that Otto Trucking is somehow tainted by what Stroz did or did not do.
 7 Rissetto v. Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 343, 94 F.3d 597 (9th Cir. 1996) ("Judicial
 8 estoppel, sometimes also known as the doctrine of preclusion of inconsistent positions,
 9 precludes a party from gaining an advantage by taking one position, and then seeking a 10 second advantage by taking an incompatible position").

11       Waymo's sole reason for a continuance directed to Otto Trucking is that Otto Trucking
 12 produced about 1,000 documents relating to communications between counsel for Ottomotto or Otto
 13 Trucking on the one hand, and counsel for Uber on the other before the Joint Defense Agreement
 14 was signed.<sup>1</sup> This production occurred incident to the Federal Circuit's ruling. These documents
 15 were provided to Otto Trucking by its transaction counsel, O'Melveny & Myers, contain no
 16 redactions, primarily concern Ottomotto, and have virtually nothing to with Otto Trucking. These 17 documents primarily relate to the due diligence effort associated with Ottomotto that were in the 18 possession of counsel common to Ottomotto and Otto Trucking. To the extent Otto Trucking is 19 mentioned in the documents, they relate to the negotiation of the Otto Trucking agreement. Other 20 than ten documents that are password protected that Otto Trucking is working on unlocking with 21 assistance from counsel for Stroz Friedberg and immediately producing, Otto Trucking's production 22 is complete.

23       Waymo next blames Otto Trucking for delay suffered by the appeal because Mr.
 24 Levandowski "controls its actions." Motion at 14 n.3. Waymo chose not to sue Mr. Levandowski
 25 and instead chose to sue a company with over 100 shareholders that owns trucks. Mr. Levandowski
 26 asserted his legal rights. Otto Trucking did not seek to appeal. Waymo should not be heard to

27       28<sup>1</sup> Waymo contends that these documents are likely heavily redacted. Mot. at 12, ln4-6. As set forth herein, Waymo's allegation is false.

1 complaint about Mr. Levandowski's appeal when it chose not to sue him.

2 Should the Court maintain the October 10 trial date as to Otto Trucking, Otto Trucking
 3 respectfully requests the Court maintain its order limiting Waymo's trade secret claims to the nine
 4 Waymo identified on August 1, 2017. Dkt. No. 1215. Waymo is incorrect that the Court has no
 5 power to narrow the trade secret claims. The Court has the inherent power to narrow the claims in 6 dispute. See In re Katz Interactive Call Processing Patent Litg, 639 F.3d 1303, 1311-12 (Fed. Cir.
 7 2011) (holding that district court's requirement that plaintiff narrow its patent claims from 1,975
 8 claims to 16 claims per defendant group was part of the Court's inherent powers to manage complex
 9 cases and did not violate due process); see also Apple, Inc. v. Samsung Elect. Co., Ltd., 67 F. Supp.
 10 3d 1100 (N.D. Cal. 2014) (rejecting plaintiff's argument that court-ordered procedure narrowing
 11 patent claims to five claims deprived it of its right to protect its patents because plaintiff could not 12 show how other claims were not duplicative of the ones already tried). Here, like the plaintiffs in 13 Katz and Apple, Waymo alleged claims based on 121 alleged trade secrets. In this type of complex
 14 intellectual property case, the Court properly exercised its inherent powers to manage the case and 15 ordered that Waymo narrow its claims to eliminate largely duplicative claims. The Court should not 16 reverse its order requiring Waymo to narrow its trade secrets. In addition, Waymo has not articulated
 17 any damages theory against Otto Trucking. For this reason, any issues related to Otto Trucking can 18 be decided in a bench trial on the current trial date or via summary judgment. A continuance as to 19 Otto Trucking is unwarranted and should be denied.

20 Finally, Otto Trucking contends that no court appointed expert is necessary as to Otto
 21 Trucking because it has not ever used the Uber LiDAR systems alleged to contain the Waymo trade
 22 secrets, and Waymo has no evidence to the contrary.
